The home care industry is a fast-growing, essential sector of the U.S. economy. As life expectancy increases, the number of seniors is growing much faster than other segments of the population. Today, there are about seven people (family, friends, or others) aged 45-64 to care for each person over the age of 80. By 2050, this caregiver ratio will be less than 3:1. Seven in 10 Americans over age 65 will need long-term care services during their lifetime,¹ but 90 percent of them want to stay at home as they age.² Professional home care meets these rapidly growing needs while providing seniors many other benefits.
